

learnd acquire Comfort Controls to bolster world-class delivery capability further.

Learnd acquires Comfort Controls Group to add further engineering resource and deliver on Building Performance as a Service promise.

World-class delivery capability

We're delighted to announce that learnd Group have completed the acquisition of Comfort Controls.

The acquisition adds our outstanding delivery and engineering resources to learnd's current portfolio, following previous acquisitions of Aimteq and WEMS in February 2020.

This acquisition provides a fantastic platform to grow as a business, rolling in new skills, products and toolsets from learnd's growing arsenal of partners, from emerging building technologies, through to data and finance partners.

Day-to-day operations stay the same

The acquisition won't affect the day-to-day running of Comfort Controls. The business will continue to be run with the same focus on operational excellence as before, but with the advantages of learnd's partnerships, financial tools, and skills.

Following the acquisition, we will retain both offices and all staff will retain their current roles.

Simon Wood, learnd's Co-founder and COO commented, "Comfort Controls have an outstanding reputation within the building controls industry, they're hugely respected and have a H&S record that's second to none. The acquisition complements our previous acquisition of Aimteq and WEMS, and shows our commitment to delivering on our vision. Together, we will help our customers businesses align their buildings with their organisational goals, guaranteed."

Kris Mitchell, Technical Director at Comfort Controls commented, "There is fantastic alignment between Comfort and learnd. Their vision to deliver better buildings, and the financial tools they are using to guarantee those outcomes are truly innovative. But more than that, learnd's drive for operational excellence and delivering for their customers matches ours perfectly."

Who are learnd?

learnd is the UK's leading technology-led integrator, created to bring a different approach to building management. Founded by highly experienced industry figures, John Clifford and Simon Wood to drive a step change in how buildings are managed. learnd aligns how buildings operate to the organisational objectives of their customers, wrapped with a guarantee. Their unique Building Performance as a Service offering allows organisations to get what they need from their buildings, with minimal upfront investment, guaranteed.

In recent months, learnd have invested heavily in field expertise to deliver on their offering, acquiring Aimteq, WEMS and now Comfort Controls, to grow to 160 members of staff.